

Alexia Dawes Biography

Alexia Dawes is currently a manager of State and Local Government affairs for Northrop Grumman. In this role, she manages the company's interactions with state and local elected officials and is responsible for government relations strategy in the Southeast.

Prior to joining the Northrop Grumman team in 2019, Ms. Dawes served as the Legislative Affairs Director at the Florida Department of Management Services. Additionally, Ms. Dawes served as the Deputy Legislative Affairs Director at the Florida Department of Economic Opportunity where she supported the legislative affairs director and managed the agency's external affairs including traveling with the agency Director to represent the agency across Florida.

Ms. Dawes earned her master's degree in applied American politics and policy as well as her bachelor's degree in political science and applied economics from The Florida State University. As a sixth generation Floridian, Alexia enjoys life in beautiful North Florida. She recently moved to Nassau County following her engagement to Fernandina Beach City Commissioner, Bradley Bean. They are getting married in December!