

Anne Price is president and founder of PR Works, Inc. a business-to-business PR/communications firm. The firm's work includes media and industry analyst relations, content development, speakership programs, events, crisis communications, video and audio content and related.

Clients have included a number of venture- and privately funded emerging companies in the cybersecurity, networking, cloud and semiconductor markets. In addition, PR Works managed external and member communications for almost 20 years for Trusted Computing Group, an industry standards and advocacy group, and it has provided services for the Messaging Mobile Malware Anti-abuse Working Group, the SCSI Trade Association and other tech industry groups. She developed and managed long-form industry content and research projects for more than seven years for the SANS Institute, a nonprofit cybersecurity industry organization. She also has managed PR and other programs for Global Foundries, Intel Corporation and others.

Anne holds a bachelors degree in journalism from West Virginia University. Previous volunteer experience includes the successful startup and charter of the Cactus Wren Chapter of the National Charity League (Paradise Valley, Ariz.), officer and board positions at the Del Sol Chapter of National Charity League (San Diego, Calif.), managing communications, fundraising and bylaws updates for the Coronado High School Sailing Team, and leadership of a Girl Scout Troop (Paradise Valley, Ariz.). She also has served on her HOA board. Anne and her husband moved to Amelia Island to enjoy the beaches, parks, bike paths, birding and many other unique outdoor opportunities and look forward to supporting the mission of Keep Nassau Beautiful.
